

WHAT'S NEXT?

On January 6th, the United States Congress followed the established legal and Constitutional procedure to count the Electoral College votes. As a result, Joe Biden is now president-elect of the United States.

Obviously, this result is disappointing to the roughly 75 million Americans who voted to reelect President Trump. Acknowledging the outcome of the Electoral Vote does not deny the serious concerns that have been raised about a clearly imperfect process.

Unfortunately, on the day of the vote count, there was a disgraceful, illegal, and violent attack on our nation's Capitol. While at least one, and perhaps several, of the provocateurs were radical leftists, at least according to their own social media posts, the attack no doubt included multiple admitted Trump supporters and conspiracy followers of Q-Anon.

We condemn the violent and unlawful attacks in the strongest possible terms regardless of who perpetrated them or for what reason. There is no excuse for such lawlessness which ended in a tragic loss of life.

"I saw the videos where it appears that Capitol Police opened barricades and doors. But I also saw criminals breaking into the Capitol in violent fashion. That must be condemned just as the summer violence should be condemned. I do not believe the vast majority of those who were in DC on January 6 had any intention of storming the Capitol. But some clearly did and that is horrific. There is no way that these individuals can be seen as anything but criminals. Beyond the loss of life and damage to property, the goons who attacked our Capitol also interrupted a Constitutional process and threatened our elected representatives. This is precisely why people are so upset." -Kevin Freeman

We had serious concerns about the election, especially in light of multiple procedural changes. And we supported legal and constitutional efforts to address those concerns. But the efforts had to be legal and Constitutional. Breaking into the Congress does not qualify.

- To put it simply, if we believed that Trump or anyone else was attempting to steal an election, we would absolutely oppose that!

- It is curious why so many folks on both sides seem to have no interest in conducting the audit?
- Regardless of your party affiliation, the 2020 election process ended with the Congressional count of the electoral votes. It is now time to decide "What's Next."

IMPORTANT: We are Constitution fans and love the United States. This is far more important than any one individual or candidate.

Your Mission:

To ensure election integrity through your state legislatures.

To stand for free speech against Big Tech censorship.

To Prepare your finances as it relates to new anticipated radical policies.

"None of this changes the reality that the process this year was more than messy. And don't tell me that it was the most secure election ever. The truth is that the Intelligence Community has admitted that they withheld a report on Foreign Interference until after the election." -Kevin Freeman

Ep. 3-121 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Special Report. This includes notes and research links from Kevin Freeman.

Some may be happy that Donald Trump has been sidelined. But don't ignore that 75 million Americans voted for him and they must not be sidelined solely because they supported a sitting President running for reelection. This is not just about Donald Trump.

Biden is now president-elect, and it is critical that America continues to focus on unity AND election integrity.

- There is the issue of massive rule changes made without state legislative approval as a result of the pandemic. Even today, The state legislatures themselves were leading the complaints.
- If you want to say that the courts looked into all these irregularities and found them without merit, you are misinformed.

Even the noted Jonathan Turley, among others, admits that the cases were largely dismissed on procedural rules rather than a review of the evidence.

- Voting machines remain an issue. Before this election ever happened there were bi-partisan, credible and authoritative reports of machine vulnerabilities either due to manipulation or hacking. That's just a fact.
- We've covered all of this before and it became the basis for a large number of members of the House and Senate to object to the certification, following long-held procedures.

This is something that the Democrats have done many times. It is perfectly lawful and acceptable.

- But the fact is that after listening to the objections, the Congress, led by the Vice President, did count the votes and declare Joe Biden to be the president-elect. Whether you agree or disagree, that is simply stating the facts.

Accepting the outcome of this election should not eliminate the need to make certain that future elections are free and fair. Our nation needs healing. We need to regain confidence in the system. The second concern that we have is the knee-jerk effort to silence speech. One of the bedrock principles of our nation is free speech. It's sometimes messy. But it is essential to protect our other freedoms.

There are several considerations to be addressed as we go forward with a Biden Presidency.

We cannot allow one difficult election and the disruption of our Capitol to be used as an excuse to ignore good governance.

This should be a bi-partisan concern because either party could try to rig an election. We must not let them. Those willing to unlawfully break into the Capitol and threaten our representatives would no doubt also be willing to try and hack the next election. That cannot be allowed.

There has also been a knee-Jerk effort to silence speech. One of the bedrock principles of our nation is free speech. It's sometimes messy. But it is essential to protect our other freedoms.

In summary, the four main issues we will address today in your briefing include:

1. Stay Focused on Future Election Integrity.

- We need to make certain that we never have to go through something like this again.
- Many on the left want to hide behind the fact that courts ignored or dismissed the cases. They say that this is proof of a clean election. They want to blame Trump and Trump supporters. The truth is that there were significant changes to the election procedures that were not approved by the state legislatures. Those were valid reasons to raise objections prior to the vote in Congress.
- At this point now, those procedures can and should be reviewed by the legislatures for future elections.
- Article II, Section 1, Clause 2 of the US Constitution reads:

“Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress...”

PAGE 4

- The Courts did refuse to intervene in the midst of an election. That's their long-standing policy. But now that the election is over, we expect that they would back the legislatures in any attempt to address the changes for the future.
- Legislatures hold enormous power, especially the power of the purse strings. They can and should act immediately to examine how elections are conducted in their state.
- For example, a legislature could change the law so that the state's electors were given to the winner of the national popular vote. That would be a bad idea and would destroy the purpose of the Electoral College. But many on the left are pushing for that to happen and it shows that legislators have the power.
- In some states, the electors are bound to the winner of the state's popular vote. But in other states such as Maine and Nebraska, the state may split the electors based on the vote in Congressional districts. In this year's Nebraska election, for example, President Trump won four electoral votes and Biden won one.
- The point is that how the electors are chosen is to be decided by the state legislature.
- Courts claim they were reluctant to hear challenges after the election took place because they did not want to interfere with an already cast vote. But they should support the legislature in setting the rules for future votes.

State Legislatures Guidelines to be Addressed:

This is where we must learn from the issues of 2020. The battle will be in the state legislatures. Here are a few suggestions:

1. The laws on mail-in ballots need to be addressed. There are guidelines and safeguards that should have been put in place according to the National Election Defense Commission. That is a bi-partisan group that was created out of the work of former President Jimmy Carter and James Baker.
2. The laws on observers need to be strengthened.
3. The election officials need to be made more accountable to the legislature.

PAGE 5

4. The voter rolls need to be cleaned. Services like Vote Detective should be enabled and supported.
5. There needs to be a preservation of ballots that can be reviewed by optical scan after the election to verify integrity.

This will be a battle. But it is the next battle that must be fought. It is a place where you can make a difference.

2. The Threat to Free Speech on Social Media Monopolies:

The argument has been made that Twitter, YouTube, and Facebook are all private companies and thus have a right to refuse service to anyone. They set the guidelines and if you break them, you are off their platforms. If you don't like their policies, it's a free country so "build your own platform." That's a pretty strong argument at first blush. But it fails when you look at the big picture.

- First, the big players really are monopolies with enormous power. We've already seen what appears to be a coordinated action to destroy Parler, a rising competitor.
- Second, the big players told the Congress that they should be treated differently than other media companies and deserved special legal protection like a phone company. They claimed they couldn't control the content on their platform.

For example, if two people coordinate a crime over the phone, you don't sue AT&T and Verizon. They are neutral platforms. Congress agreed and established Section 230 protections under the law.

But that privilege was designed to protect free speech, not to destroy it. And this frees social media from any responsibility, allowing them to pick and choose where and how they enforce their rules. It creates the potential for a massive double standard.

- Because of their enormous power in allowing or disallowing free speech, these same companies can influence elections. We've already seen Twitter block any stories about Hunter Biden's laptop. Polling after the election clearly shows that had this story gotten out, a significant percentage of voters would have switched from Biden to Trump.
- We also know that Russia and others sought to influence the 2016 election through social media. But here are two facts:
 - ✓ We cannot allow the social media oligarchs to control the election process simply because they have an outdated Section 230 protection.
 - ✓ Silencing a large portion of the population will not lead to healing for our nation. The very fascism that they claim to hate is being implemented or at least set up to be implemented by their policies. By wholesale banning political opponents these companies are creating the very toxic atmosphere they claim they want to avoid.
- People are making "purge lists." They are trying to silence and marginalize and even punish their fellow Americans for thought crimes. This is clearly fascism and it is coming from the progressives.
- Yes, if someone broke the law and broke into the Capitol, that was criminal activity. We have laws to address that.

"But what about the notion that someone should be fired simply for voting for a sitting President of the United States? Should you lose your home or rights? If we the people allow such retribution to take place here and now, it won't be long before we are purging people for all sorts of things.

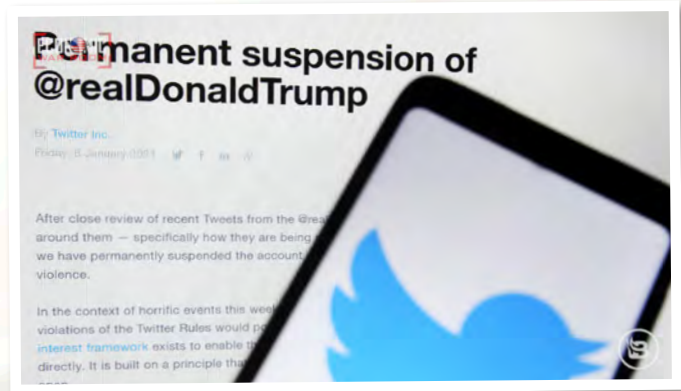

What happens if you choose the wrong power company to heat your home? Or attend the wrong school? Or buy the wrong car or even the wrong toilet paper? Can we purge people for that as well?" –Kevin Freeman

- Should we allow the tyranny of the majority? Or worse, the tyranny of a few? A fascist would say yes. A freedom-loving American says, NO WAY!

We need to find a freedom-driven solution to the social media dilemma.

- While we don't have all the answers. We know that social media shouldn't have it both ways. If they get special legal protections, they need to allow alternative viewpoints. This is not advocating that they have to carry messages involved in criminal activity. They don't and shouldn't. But they can't be so arbitrary that they ban true political discourse. Section 230 must be reformed or repealed.

- Second, monopolies should not be allowed to destroy rising competition. There are some reports of the horrible things that Parler had on their platform. It wasn't good. But there's a double standard because Twitter has hosted a lot of hate speech as well.

- When the existing social media companies work together to silence people and eliminate competition, there is a problem and a threat to our Democracy. These companies wield enormous power and with great power must also come great responsibility. We cannot lose our freedoms to the whims of Mark Zuckerberg and Jack Dorsey.
- As you already know, these same social media have taken it upon themselves to silence a sitting President of the United States.
- Even the ACLU and European leaders see the threat in social media censorship. Imagine that. The ACLU and Angela Merkel are siding with Donald Trump on this one.
- It feels like is a Marxist takeover of our communications. Then when the people find another alternative such as Parler, the big tech companies conspire to put them out of business.
- This DOES NOT promote healing. We need to make certain that we never have to go through something like this again.

3. The Risk of Radical Policies from the Left.

Beware of the potential for radical new policies to make things a whole lot worse.

- We talk a lot about Unrestricted Warfare coming from China. What you need to know is that the radical left is also using those strategies to gain control of America. We are in the midst of a Color Revolution and explained a lot of this in our previous Episode, Playing for Keeps.
- This is a fight for the future of America and the world and has enormous implications for you, your family, and future generations.
- The Green New Deal, for example, is back on the table.
- You can expect higher taxes. There will be a “fiscal responsibility” push to pay for all the massive Covid expenses.
- There will be a push to re-regulate everything. President Trump slashed regulations but the Democrats love them. They want the permanent bureaucracy to have increasing control of your lives.
- There will be a huge push to increase immigration with a path to citizenship. Democrats see this a path to permanent election victories.
- All of these policies are promoted by socialists and that, unfortunately is the agenda for a Biden/Harris presidency.

4. The Financial Implications of a Biden Presidency and What to Do with Your Money.

Now that the vote is over, we have to move to a new battle ground and that has to do with your money. This is where you can and should make a difference.

- If all freedom-loving Americans will re-orient their financial thinking starting now, we can have an impact.
- We call it “weaponizing your money.” Before doing that, you have to stop funding your own demise.

- Think about the three things you can do with your money:
 - ✓ Spend it
 - ✓ Save and invest it
 - ✓ Give it away
- All three are important. Do your money habits line up with your values?
- You probably have your giving at least partially under control. For example, if you opposed Donald Trump, it's unlikely that you gave to his campaign.
- But does your spending line up with your values? Or are you feeding the beast? And what about your investments? Do you own Twitter because you think it's a great company? You may be surprised to find out that it is in your portfolio if you have an Index Fund.
- We understand, you are living life, raising a family, trying to hold onto your job or keep customers. Life is challenging, especially now. But you cannot neglect your money.

Jesus said in Luke 16:11 that if you can't be faithful with worldly wealth, who will ever trust you with true riches? We have a responsibility to use our money in line with our values. We call it "weaponizing your money."

Weaponizing your money - This will be the biggest battleground from now until the next election.

In addition, we expect financial upheaval in several areas:

- ✓ Inflation: there are strong signals that inflation is about to return in a big way. You likely noticed that the last time you visited a store or got takeout from a restaurant. Price pressures are enormous and there has been so much money printing to keep the economy afloat during a pandemic.
- ✓ China Wants to Become the #1 Economy. China has gotten increasingly aggressive. The Chinese have plans to become the dominant economy in the world over the next five years and to punish anyone who stands in their way.
- ✓ Stock market at all-time highs despite the economic problems of a global pandemic and despite the huge change in policies we can expect from a Biden/Harris administration.

✓ The Politicization of American companies that have decided to get highly political with your money. Do you own shares in Marriott? If so, your company has decided to change their long-standing policy on bi-partisan political giving. They refuse to give to any politician who questioned the 2020 election results in Congress. Did they do that to Barbara Boxer or those who questioned the 2016 election? Of course not. That's their right, of course. But if you are a Marriott shareholder, they are doing it with your money!

- The far left has been weaponizing your money at the corporate level for years.
- What we are talking about is weaponizing your money at the shareholder level and making your voice heard!

CASE STUDY: When Twitter banned President Trump from their platform, the shareholders spoke by selling their stock. Twitter fell 12% the next trading day and the company lost $5 billion in market cap.

How Weaponizing Your Money Works:

- You may be wondering how you can keep up with all of this. You want to do the right thing but don't know what to do or how to do it.
- Fortunately, there are some very good financial advisors who should be willing to help you weaponize your money to protect your values.
- The far left is promoting ESG (environmental, social justice, and governance). These are code words for their radical agenda.
- Our polling indicates that most Americans would prefer LSV (Liberty, Security, and Values).
- The bad news is that too few financial advisors know how to make the switch and help their clients. The good news is that the Economic War Room has partnered with Liberty University to train interested advisors.

- But we need your help. Our training plans were temporarily delayed by COVID and the election. But because of where we are today, the need for this training is greater than ever before!

Take Action - We Want to Make This An Easy Next Step:

- How you can help is by nominating your financial advisors to our program. Whether you work with a stockbroker, financial planner, insurance agent, or CPA, we want to help them help you.
- What we are asking is that you provide us the name and contact information of anyone who helps you invest. And then tell them about our training. That's it. To do that, simply go to EconomicWarRoom.com/advisor. This will take you less than a minute. But it could be the most important thing you do today. Then, after you've done that, call your advisor and encourage her or him to take our upcoming training class.
- We've been in this fight a long time and now our training has become critical. Advisors will be invited to join the National Security Investment Consultant Institute, or NSIC Institute for short. They will learn how to help you protect your investments.
- More importantly, they will learn how to help you weaponize your money to defend your values and our collective liberty.
- We are also developing a client track for those who manage their own money.

Why You Should Care:

- Free and fair elections may not exist again if we do not ensure election integrity and understand the anomalies now. [Even if you are on the left and feel this year's election had a good outcome, you should be wary of future manipulation that might go against your interests.]
- Radical policies are about to be implemented that will impact your money, livelihood and way of life.
- Freedom of Speech is being threatened like never before.
- Aligning your money with your values will give your voice a bigger platform.

Next Steps:

1. Increase the power of your voice. Begin the process of aligning your money with your values and nominate your financial advisor to learn more at <https://www.economicwarroom.com/advisor>.
2. Learn from the election issues of 2020. One major battle will be in the state legislatures. Here are a few suggestions to encourage your State Legislatures to enforce fair and legal elections:
 - ✓ The laws on mail-in ballots need to be addressed. There are guidelines and safeguards that should have been put in place according to the National Election Defense Commission. That is a bi-partisan group that was created out of the work of former President Jimmy Carter and James Baker.
 - ✓ The laws on observers need to be strengthened.
 - ✓ The election officials need to be made more accountable to the legislature.
 - ✓ The voter rolls need to be cleaned. Services like Vote Detective should be enabled and supported.
 - ✓ Their needs to be a preservation of ballots that can be reviewed by optical scan after the election to verify integrity.
3. Work with your elected representatives on a freedom-driven solution to the social media dilemma. Getting Section 230 reformed or repealed should be the focus.
 - ✓ We know that social media shouldn't have it both ways. If they get special legal protections, they need to allow alternative viewpoints. This is not advocating that they have to carry criminal activity. They don't and shouldn't. But they can't be so arbitrary that they ban true political discourse. Section 230 must be reformed or repealed.
