

Restoring America's Entrepreneurial Spirit

Since the 1920's America has been known as an economic and military power. American ingenuity and industrialism drove the nation to become the most impactful nation in the world. Many nations can trace the success of their governments and economies to American involvement after World War II.

However, amid greatness, it is easy to enjoy the fruits of your labor even as an entire generation complacent. Today's America is not what it once was. The innovative spark that once made this nation great has dwindled as culture has shifted away from manifest destiny and has replaced its entrepreneurial spirit with a spirit of comfort and entitlement.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » The Decline of Innovation and Rise of Entitlement
- » Individual Property Rights
- » Consolidation and the American Tailspin
- » American Made Promise
- » Market Outlook and the NSIC
- » America, the New Promised Land

YOUR MISSION: Understand the purpose of the rights outlined in the Constitution and why we must protect them and keep our government officials accountable to save America.

⚠ ATTENTION: Your rights are under attack as elites subtly whittle away at American values in an attempt to crush American ingenuity and subjugate the people.

Ep. 6-236 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Doug De Groote. Doug is a friend of the Economic War Room® and a patriot.

Doug is a Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®) with an MBA in Financial Planning and is an active member of the Financial Planning Association (FPA). Before establishing De Groote Financial Group, Doug founded the United Wealth Management division of United Capital. Prior to that, Doug was a partner at Crowell, Weedon and Co. He regularly contributes to a variety of financial and general media. Doug's passion, and what he believes, is that everyone deserves the opportunity; they deserve to have the freedom and responsibility to be pro-active in achieving independence and financial success. He is also active politically and has dedicated his time, talents, and treasure to keeping America strong for future generations. He's on the board of directors for Charlie Kirk's Turning Point, USA. In addition, he's completed our NSIC advisor training at Liberty University.

The Decline of Innovation and Rise of Entitlement

America's history is teeming with stories of great innovators and their incredible inventions. The spirit of entrepreneurship steered Americans for generations as they sought to build a world for themselves that was better than anything they had ever experienced before.

The Entrepreneurial Spirit is defined by MasterClass as “an innate feeling of curiosity about how you can use the convergence of your interests and business acumen to enter the marketplace and better the world by creating and selling your own products and services... The entrepreneurial spirit empowers dreamers to become doers.”

Forbes author Jacquelyn Smith furthers this explanation in the following excerpt.

“Entrepreneurial spirit is a mindset. It's an attitude and approach to thinking that actively seeks out change, rather than waiting to adapt to change. It's a mindset that embraces critical questioning, innovation, service, and continuous improvement... It's being agile, never resting on your laurels, shaking off the cloak of complacency and seeking out new opportunities.”

The Threat: America Seems to Have Lost its Desire to Improve.

Such a mindset established America and fueled its rise to greatness. This desire to improve the world and put every creative thought to the test inspired Americans for generations to create the greatest standard of living the world had ever seen.

However, with a track record of success, new generations of Americans became more comfortable and no longer understood the sacrifices that were made by those who came before them. These generations no longer felt a need to make sacrifices to continue to improve the standard of living and instead took the time to enjoy the comforts this new standard of living provided. They felt entitled to the innovative spirit and assumed America would continue to progress without their sacrifice.

“We’ve lost our way over the last 20, 30 years. Growing up in California, it was truly the epicenter for entrepreneurialism. Back in the 70s and 80s when Reagan was governor, all the way through the Reagan White House, more businesses were created in California than any other part of the country year over year.” –Doug De Groote

America has fallen away from the ownership mentality that made every problem an opportunity for an innovative solution. Instead, we look at problems as threats to be avoided.

For a more in-depth discussion of the decline of American innovation, and what can be done to restore it, check out Episode 232 with special guest Chris Buskirk.

1. Individual Property Rights

Innovation was made possible in American history by the right to individual property, especially intellectual property.

Section 8 of Article 1 in the Constitution guarantees the ownership of intellectual property to the individual inventor or creator. This was a revolutionary idea as it protected innovators and encouraged more Americans to use their creative energy to improve life in America.

“If you don’t know your rights, how do you defend them?” –Doug De Groote

Ideas that would have been deemed as foolish by European science societies were given a chance in America. While some failed, some became the foundational inventions of the 19th and 20th centuries.

The creative spirit that fueled westward expansion, as Americans dreamed of a better life for their families and an opportunity to define their own destinies, turned from its westward direction and instead looked to the sky.

» While some of the science societies around the world spoke of flight as impossibly out of reach for modern humanity, two bicycle repairmen decided to try an idea... suddenly Americans were in the sky. What the world said was impossible, America had proven was simply a problem waiting for an American solution.

- » American ingenuity was rivaled for the first time during World War II as Nazi Germany conquered most of the European continent with their superior technology. However, it was only a matter of time before Americans developed the P-51 Mustang which dominated the skies and crushed the once unbeatable Luftwaffe.
- » Only a few years later the Soviet Union dared to challenge the ingenuity of America. The sky was no longer high enough. Russia rushed to space. America’s response was to put a man on the moon. In an attempt to out-do the US, Russia spent so much money on the Space Race that it became a major factor in the collapse of the Soviet Union.

“Without free speech, you lose creativity of ideas... if you’re afraid to do something -- that’s why Germany, after Hitler, they didn’t create anything. I mean, look at Russia, if socialism was so great and free speech was so bad, Russia would be the most creative country in the world.” –Doug De Groote

To this day, no nation has successfully challenged the superiority of American ingenuity.

This is because no other nation on Earth has provided their citizens with the level of freedom, autonomy, and ownership that is necessary for the spirit of entrepreneurship to flourish. Perhaps the greatest innovation in history was the invention and protection of such property rights and individual liberties.

“Even China, which attempted to adopt capitalism, hasn’t been innovative. They’re stealing most of the intellectual property they have. Sadly, however, as we are losing IP and IP protections, the Chinese are adopting our old patent laws and stealing innovation itself.” –Kevin Freeman

2. Consolidation and the American Tailspin

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, America has enjoyed great wealth, prosperity, and peace. During this time, American businesses began to use their success to grow, often consolidating their wealth and power.

- » The world had become smaller. New technologies had connected the world and, in so doing, introduced businesses in similar fields to each other across the continent.
- » As these businesses began to consolidate, they left less room for new players to join the market. Small businesses could not afford to match the prices these larger corporations could offer.
- » Slowly, what was once a country full of entrepreneurs became a country of employees.

The freedoms that had fostered such powerful innovation for centuries were still there, but the opportunities to wield them effectively became less accessible.

- » This epidemic spread quickly as the education system encouraged students to go to college and get good jobs... not to start their own businesses.
- » Instead of inspiring young innovators, the US school system was created to suppress those who think differently.
- » Based on the Prussian model of education, the primary focus of the education system was the conditioning of students to be obedient, subordinate, and comfortable with collective living.
- » The largest supporters of this new education system were factory owners who wanted a better educated work force who would not think for themselves but be efficient in their laborious tasks.

WARNING: This is an intentional attack on the minds of a generation.

Not only are schools failing to teach and inspire students to make the world a better place, but the types of technological improvements of today are also designed to crush the innovative and encourage the complacent.

For most of American history, the majority of funding went into the development of innovative technologies that could improve the standard of living of all Americans and inspire the next generation to go even further.

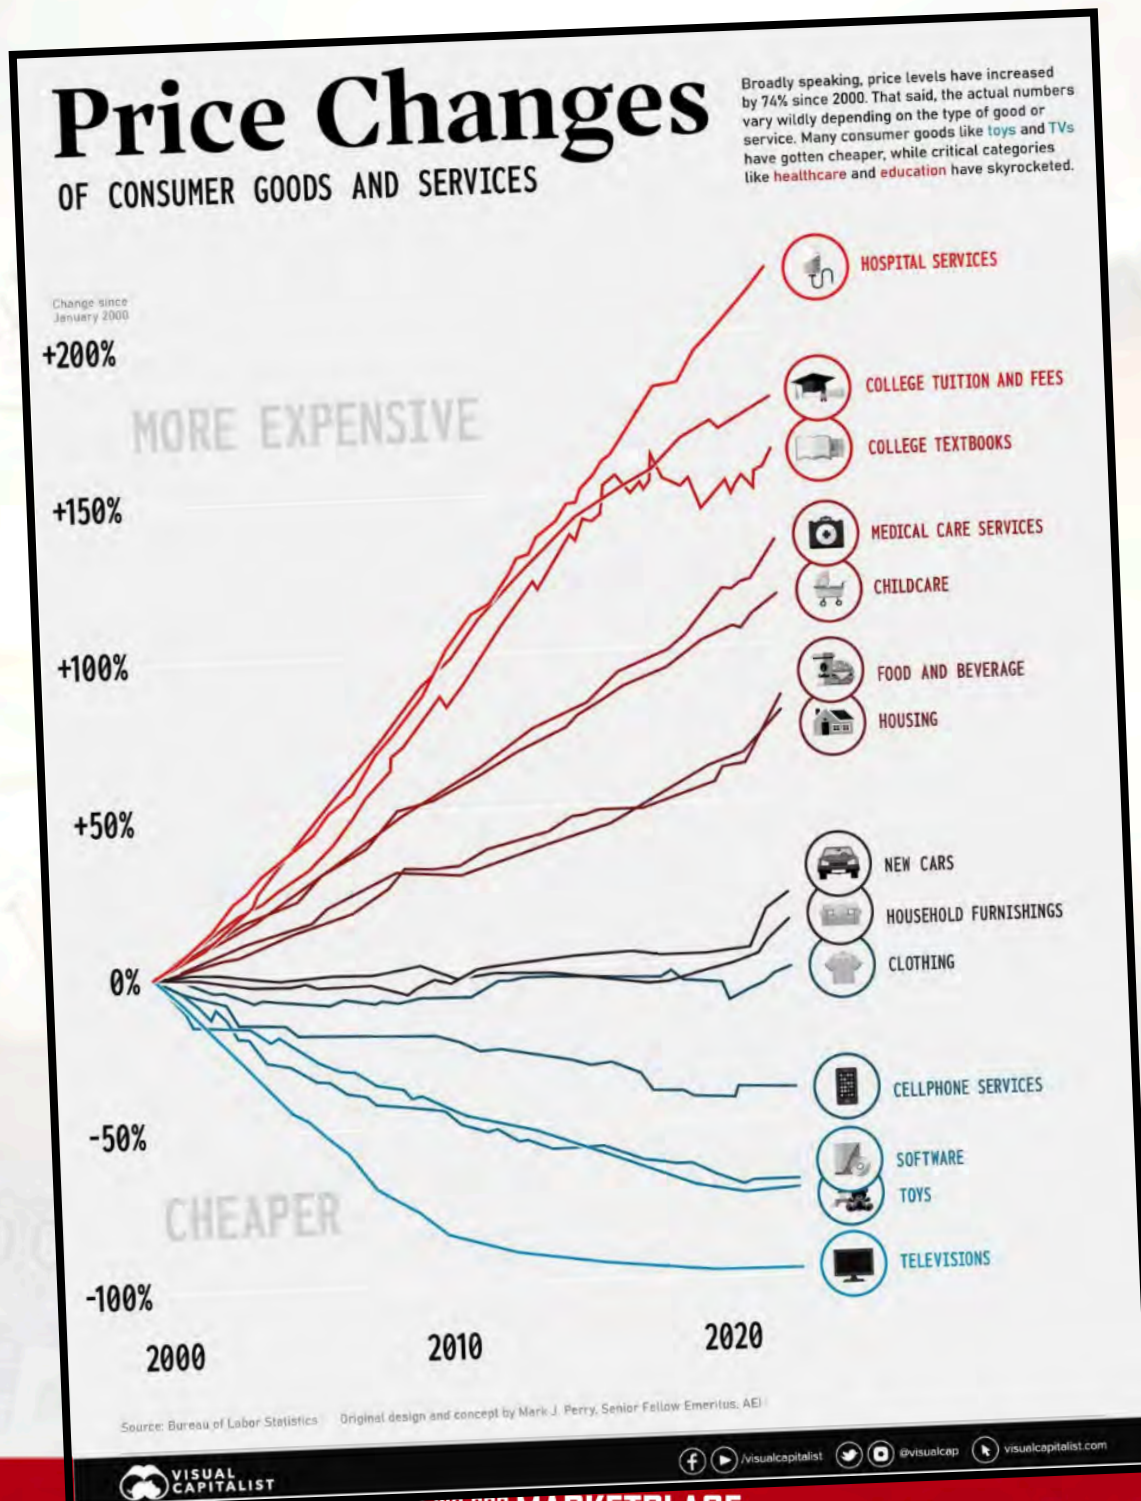

✱ Today technological advances are found primarily in

- » Social media,
- » Video games,
- » Film, and
- » Other forms of entertainment.

Money has primarily been invested in technology that will sedate a generation, soothing them to sleep while the elites who fund such technologies refuse to let their own children use them.

These industries have not only received funding to develop innovative technologies but also to improve them and make them more accessible. This chart from Visual Capitalist shows where affordability has been a priority... and where it hasn't.

“The innovation that we’re seeing [is in] social media, but it’s the ability to control people, to block people, to silence speech... all of the innovation dollars which are being funded in large part by the government, our tax dollars... we’re taking liberty away from individuals and giving power to the government, or to China.” –Kevin Freeman

Government funds have been a large part of such technological invention. With the release of the Twitter Files, it is clear the government has been in bed with these large tech corporations... with malicious intent. Together, they want to silence political opponents, their supporters, and any statement that does not align with their narrative.

Wall Street is also heavily invested in these tech giants... and the political donations from Wall Street tell you everything you need to know. According to Doug, the vast majority of all Wall Street donations during the 2020 election went to Democrat candidates. And as Doug said they have gone “far, far left. And they’re getting into things that are segregating our economy and our people.”

Key Point: While there is a lot of money behind such movements and technologies, the greatest innovation, however, is inspired by freedom and thrives due to the freedom of its creators.

3. American Made Promise

To return America to its roots, secure the rights that our founding fathers laid out in the Constitution, and restore American ingenuity, Doug has helped to develop the American Made Promise.

“The freer the country, the more prosperous and secure the people. Our prosperity and security depend on us, the citizenry, holding our elected and unelected officials accountable... Check out Americanmadepromise.com, sign it and pass it on.” –Doug De Groote

The American Made Promise is a pledge based on government accountability.

- » Elected officials are supposed to be held accountable to the people.
- » Public officials are meant to be governed by the electorate, by the citizenry.

As Doug says, “This is one way to say, hey, I believe in this. I believe in our Constitution. I believe in these ideas, and I’m going to sign my name on it, just like our founding fathers did when they pledged their life, liberty, and their sacred honor.”

This promise is for American citizens and their officials to sign to ensure that government officials are held accountable to uphold the promises they made to their constituents.

“This is our Declaration of Independence moment in modern history that we’re at such a stage where... we’ve compromised our way to socialism. And that’s where we’re at. And this is our ‘no more’ moment.” –Doug De Groote

Over the last century we have watched as the US government has grown.

More and more government organizations are being formed and delegated responsibility.

- » The claim is that these new groups will be more focused on specific projects and will be able to complete them more effectively, however, it is really just an abdication of power and authority from Congress.

- » These responsibilities belong to Congress because they are elected officials and are accountable to their constituents.

CAUTION: These new organizations and agencies are unelected officials, who are not held accountable by the people. When Congress cedes its power, all it does is grant the executive branch more power as the executive branch will have more sway with these organizations, like the FBI.

Instead of having Congress use checks and balances properly, they have resigned this duty and granted unelected officials the power to write laws and create policies. This is an unacceptable bastardization of government in the United States. The constitution was written to limit government, not expand it.

4. The NSIC & Market Outlook

Doug De Groote is a financial advisor who completed our NSIC advisor training through Liberty University.

Market Outlook: Doug believes this will be a tough year from the standpoint of volatility. In highly volatile markets, financial advisors are increasingly valuable. While this can be difficult to navigate, there are always good areas in the economy that are successful, even if most of the economy is struggling.

The trick is to increase the weight of those sectors in your investment portfolio, while reducing others.

In times of economic turmoil, there are incredible investment opportunities.

- » In 2008 the S&P 500 dropped from about 1,400 to about 800, at the end of 2009 it was already back to about 1,100.
- » During COVID in 2020 the S&P 500 dropped from about 3,300 to 2,500, in November of 2021 the S&P 500 hit record highs of around 4,700.

In any of these scenarios, there was an incredible opportunity to develop generational wealth by investing at the lows.

Knowing the right investment choices every time is impossible, but with the help of a financial advisor it can be easier to navigate the market.

Most importantly, you need an advisor who understands your personal values and is prepared to understand how changes in geopolitics can affect your investments.

This is why we created the National Security Investment Consultant (NSIC) training program. In this program financial advisors are educated on Liberty, Security, and Values (LSV) investing. This investment style is designed to protect your investments from foreign and domestic threats, while investing in organizations that have a track record of supporting liberty and investing in alignment with your personal values and convictions. Your investments can be a tool used to restore America and propel the nation.

Doug De Groote calls NSIC “an organization that understands the value of capitalism and what it really, truly means and can see through the noise of the ESGs, the DEI stuff and all the alphabet mafia that’s out there. We’re getting to the point of what’s really important to Americans, and that’s their economic security, their well-being, and the things that we talk about in your organization. Going through the class, I have to say, every advisor should have it. Regardless of your political affiliation, you have to understand how money is utilized. And if you don’t understand that, you’re going to be at a deficit not only intellectually, but you’re going to be at a deficit from a standpoint of being able to work with clients that truly want an answer to their key question, ‘How do I best serve my country, my future, my goals and aspirations?’”

ATTENTION: If you do not have a financial advisor, there are many NSIC advisors who would be glad to work with you. If you do have a financial advisor, ask them about LSV investing and encourage them to take this training opportunity so they can be better equipped to advise you on these issues.

5. America, The New Promised Land

There are two nations on Earth established by God. Israel, the promised land of the Hebrew people, and America, one nation under God.

- » America was settled by Christians seeking a place where they could worship God freely.
- » The Revolutionary War was, in part, a war for those freedoms. Victory formed the United States of America, which would soon develop its own Constitution to protect the religious rights of all people to worship God as they saw fit.
- » The Constitution was written to define and protect the God-given rights of all people. This was made manifest through individual property rights that fostered centuries of innovation that changed the entire world.

“Biblically, you can go back to the beginning of time, Genesis, and all the way through Old Testament and the New Testament. And here we are, our founding fathers, they understood who we are and what we are as a nation because of their faith... And they set it up so that Liberty, which is granted by God, not by man’s laws, ‘would not perish from the Earth.’ ... And I truly believe that if America fails, there’s no other nation that is out there that’s going to be free. Canada is not going to do it. Australia is not going to do it. China is definitely not doing it.” –Doug De Groote

ALERT: It is the responsibility of the American people to preserve the liberties afforded to them by the Constitution. Prior generations fought for their rights to preserve them. Today, it is our turn to fight for Liberty and preserve the rights this great nation is founded upon so that the next generation has hope for a brighter tomorrow.

America is a nation founded on the principles of individual liberty and freedom where the government was to be “of the people, by the people, and for the people.” This was the case throughout our nation’s history as individual Americans came together to stand up for what was right regardless of the personal cost.

The American government must remain one controlled by, and accountable to the people, not any unelected officials that could ever seek, to wield the powers intended for the elected, to control or subdue the American people.
