

Life: Powered

Mitochondria, the powerhouse of the cell. This phrase brings back memories of science class years ago. What it teaches us is that life depends on energy. A simplified study of history shows that the people and civilizations who had access to the most energy thrived. Settlements with horses gained horsepower and were able to produce more food and travel greater distances for trade. Countries that acquired coal gained massive improvements to their industries. Oil is the modern lifeblood of Western civilization. Much like its predecessors, oil provides immense sources of energy and makes a powered life possible.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » From Living to Thriving
- » Energy, Poverty, and American Heroes
- » Keeping It Clean: American Energy
- » The Climate Cartel and Their Cult Following
- » Biden's War on Energy
- » Saving America

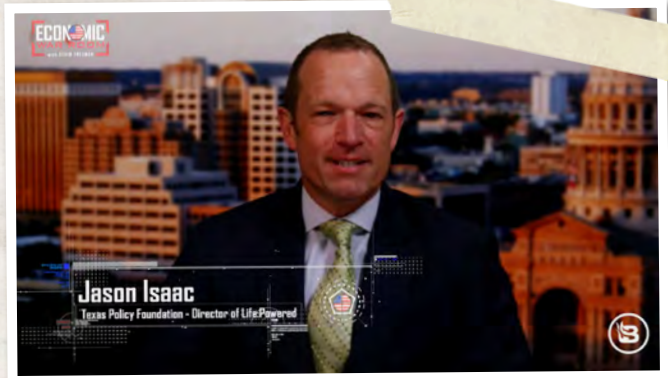

YOUR MISSION: Understand the value of affordable and reliable energy, why it is under attack, and what you can do to save America.

⚠ ATTENTION: Globalist elites know that affordable and reliable energy empowers the people. In their mission to control us, they have to destroy those energy industries.

Ep. 7-249 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Jason Isaac. Jason is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Jason Isaac is Director of Life:Powered, a national initiative of the Texas Public Policy Foundation to raise America's energy IQ. Jason has appeared live on Fox Business Network and other national news shows, and his commentaries have been published in Fox Business, The Hill, The Washington Examiner, The Daily Caller, and other publications. He is a regular contributor to The Epoch Times.

Prior to joining Life:Powered, Jason, a fourth-generation native Texan, was elected four times as the State Representative for Hays and Blanco counties in the Texas Hill Country. During his tenure, he served on the Energy Resources and Environmental Regulation committees.

From Living to Thriving

For thousands of years, humanity has fought to survive through subsistence farming and hunting. There are moments in history when life improved for the average person as surplus afforded the citizens of a powerful nation more time to consider the marvels of existence. These seasons of surplus were often followed by seasons of scientific, artistic, and social enlightenment.

There is one thing all of these moments in history have in common. Power.

While power does not guarantee surplus, it reduces the labor required to produce the same resources, which often leads to higher outputs in production. Higher outputs, especially in food production or preservation, are required for surplus.

“Energy power is life. And a life powered by affordable, reliable energy is really a life worth living.” –Jason Isaac

Since the implementation of fossil fuels, the standard of living for the average American has drastically improved. From the obvious uses in the production of electricity and gasoline to almost every form of plastic used in consumer products, industrial machines, and even medicine, fossil fuels have paved the way for new and incredible technologies that have powered and produced the greatest surplus the world has ever seen.

“It’s not just electricity and it’s not just gasoline for our cars. Hydrocarbons produce so much more than that.” –Kevin Freeman

1. Energy, Poverty, and American Heroes

Fossil fuels have powered life on every continent as great nations like America have been able to export their surplus and technological advances to help transform the lives of those living in developing countries. In conjunction with capitalism, the use of fossil fuels is directly responsible for the massive decline in absolute poverty which was over 80% of people worldwide in 1800 and is now less than 10%.

In America, we experience not only a food surplus but an energy surplus as well. Many portions of the country are capable of producing far more than they use. This surplus has allowed the US to become an exporter of both food and energy.

“There are hundreds of millions of people that are nearing starvation because of some economic policies that have been put in place over the last few years. And we need to reverse that trend. We need to be producing more energy here in the United States and exporting that energy, that freedom, that clean air, and that economic prosperity around the world.” –Jason Isaac

The Biden administration and other leftist movements have worked to weaken the American fossil fuel industry. Their goal is a world without fossil fuels, one that many people around the world cannot afford to live in.

Their strategy is based on a few claims:

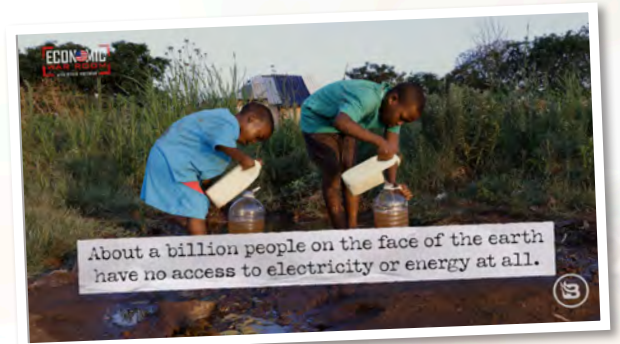

- » Oil is a limited resource and we will run out.
- » Oil is formed from fossils of prehistoric flora and sea creatures over thousands of years.
- » CO2 emissions from fossil fuels cause climate change that will harm the earth.

The truth is, we have plenty of hydrocarbon fuels on Earth, much of which is likely still undiscovered. NASA has even discovered hydrocarbons on one of Saturn’s moons...

where they claim it literally rains oil. They have also recently discovered a giant cloud of hydrocarbons that are millions of lightyears away. While this is not obtainable, it does prove that the limited resource of fossil fuels may not be as limited as they claim, and it begs the question: are they really “fossil” fuels?

Hydrocarbon fuels are incredibly efficient and affordable compared to their counterparts. This is why they became the primary energy source of the world.

Without the incredible affordability of hydrocarbon fuels for energy production, many people around the world would rapidly plunge back into extreme poverty. This would cause the death of millions as a man-made famine would sweep across the Earth.

The Western world is rapidly working toward this goal with little concern for those in developing countries who will suffer the immediate consequences.

⚠ WARNING: America's energy industry is under threat which negatively impacts the developing world.

2. Keeping It Clean: American Energy

The claim being made is that fossil fuels are a main cause of dangerous climate change. While the legitimacy of these claims can be argued, the campaign against American fossil fuels is hypocritical even if fossil fuels did cause climate change.

American energy companies have worked for the last few decades to improve the production processes of fuels and products using hydrocarbons so as to reduce pollution.

“If we’re concerned about the environment, we should be producing all those products right here in the United States because we would produce them more responsibly than anywhere else on the face of the earth, caring about human rights and environmental protection that leads to economic prosperity. This production of energy leads to economic prosperity. And that’s why we have such incredible environmental leadership in this country... It’s the last thing a lot of people don’t know about is we’re environmental leaders. We’ve had incredible strides over the last five decades of reducing pollution from the air, things that actually impact human health at large concentrations a 78% reduction over the last five decades.” —Jason Isaac

As environmental leaders in the production of energy, climate concerned individuals should be praising America for the great strides toward cleaner energy production. Instead, those same groups attack American energy companies while they hypocritically invest in China, the world's leader in unethical pollution.

In 2022 Jordan Peterson claimed that the best solution to environmental problems, like pollution, was to “make poor people as rich as possible as fast as we possibly can.” This is because people living in poverty do not have the time to think about or be concerned about the environment. Their focus is, and must be, survival.

With the life-giving power of fossil fuel energy, those living in poverty could be elevated to a more sustainable lifestyle. Once they have time to think about the future, they will want to protect the environment around them so their children can enjoy it.

Attention: America is an environmental energy leader, exporting this energy and technology could save millions of lives and reduce global pollution.

3. The Climate Cartel and Their Cult Following

Instead of being concerned with improving the lives of those living in poverty, the globalist elite have formed a Climate Cartel and have gained a cult following. They pick and choose who they will attack and who they will fund. The masses obey the puppet master's strings, even when the outcome will likely be the death of millions of people.

“I think it's this global climate cartel is pushing so hard against affordable, reliable energy to really control every aspect of our lives... I sometimes refer to them as a climate cult... and I refer to the climate cult Kool-Aid as decarbonization. And the result is the same You drink the Kool-Aid from the Jim Jones cult from decades ago, you have death and destruction. You embrace “Net Zero” decarbonization, and it's the same thing. That is the climate cult Kool-Aid. And they've got this fascination with it. It's become a religion and it's really unfortunate.” –Jason Isaac

Why are these climate alarmists attacking the very lifeblood of the society they live in?

- » The globalist elites want a world in which they have absolute power and there are fewer people.
- » Fewer people is not something that humans naturally desire as a race. It is in our biology to procreate.
- » The only times in history when human populations have drastically declined have been caused by War, Famine, and Pestilence.
- » If the globalist elites want to reduce the population, their options are limited to these three categories.

Attacking affordable, reliable energy is a surefire way to cause global famines.

With such threats on the horizon, why do some of the most successful people in the world support these movements?

Money.

Blackrock, Vanguard, and State Street have been working behind the scenes to transform the goals of corporate America. They have done so by changing the executive compensation packages so that the leaders of American companies are incentivized to toe the line of a Woke globalist elite.

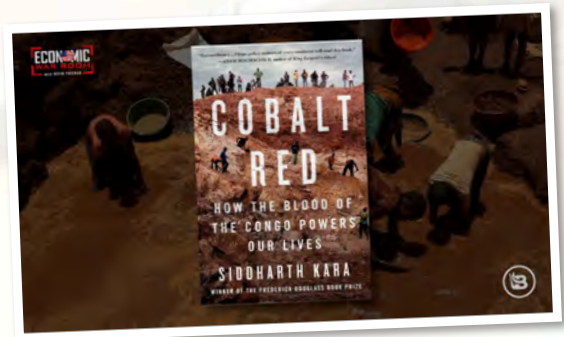

The climate cult has convinced much of the western world that we need to reach Net Zero by 2050. This would mean zero pollution. It is a foolish and unscientific quest.

In the same interview as stated above, Jordan Peterson argues that “everything pollutes something, and so, the idea that there’s any source of energy that we can derive that’s not going to produce some pollutant as a consequence, that’s the kind of nonsense you hear from people who say things like ‘net zero’, ‘We’re going to hit net zero by 2050,’ it’s like, no we’re not.”

The three laws of Chemistry, paired with the Law of Entropy, prove that in any form of energy production there will be a deterioration of useless, and sometimes harmful byproducts. Sometimes these byproducts are physical pollutants, sometimes they are cultural pollutants.

- » Solar power requires the use of earth minerals to produce. These minerals are mined in massive quarries that pollute the local landscape.
- » The shift in energy storage and transportation that would be required to remove fossil fuels would have devastating effects on human rights.
- » Lithium and Cobalt, which are necessary to produce batteries for electric vehicles and many other green energy products, are mined by slaves in Africa, many of whom are children.
- » These mines are primarily owned by the Chinese Communist Party, which makes those resources an economic threat to national security.

“UNICEF reports 40,000 kids between the ages of four and 13 are working in these mines in unsafe conditions. There have been some great books. Cobalt Red is a good one that’s come out recently talking about this very issue. But over 80% of those mines in the Congo, in Africa are owned by the Chinese Communist Party.” –Jason Isaac

The ESG funds that are being pushed by the Climate Cult are often investing in Chinese companies which benefit from or use the resources from these mines.

Attention: The Climate Cult is pushing for changes in energy production that are bad for the environment, involve slave and child labor, and will lead to famine and poverty in much of the world.

4. Biden’s War on Energy

These hypocritical globalist policies causing so much suffering around the world have now gained the support of the White House.

The Biden Administration has wholeheartedly supported ESG with new policies that encourage businesses to go woke and punishes those who do not.

The Inflation Reduction Act is dumping billions of dollars into the unreliable energy sources of solar and wind. This taxpayer money subsidizes the production and installation of wind and solar energy production facilities that still only produce about 4% of the energy America uses.

Fossil fuels still produce 79% of the energy used in America because of the unreliability of solar and wind. The funds used to subsidize green energy could have been used to subsidize the cleanest producers of fossil fuel energy which would have reduced the utility cost for Americans. Instead, those costs go up so that the climate cartel can gain even more power over the people.

“So they’re trying to distort the market to propel their favored industries, wind, solar, and these battery backup systems. Unfortunately, we found out in Texas the hard way that they don’t work when you need them most. We had winter storm Uri in 2021. Some reports say up to 700 people died as a result of that. We just didn’t have enough electricity on the grid. And it’s because the federal government has distorted the market so heavily in favor of these weather-dependent technologies that are actually crushing Americans with less reliable electricity and higher rates.” –Jason Isaac

Instead of seeing the negative impacts and reverting the policies, the Biden administration has doubled down and is pushing for Net Zero by 2050. The pollution in America could be drastically reduced, but it would lead to less energy independence and the pollution would simply be exported to the developing world, where it has harsher effects on the people.

Attention: The Biden administration’s war on affordable, reliable energy is a threat to national security, the American way of life, and the lives of millions of people around the world.

5. Saving America

Thankfully, in the craziness of this war on energy, there is hope. Jason Isaac was involved, during his tenure in the Texas legislature, in protecting the Texas energy industry.

“If you’re a financial institution and you’re boycotting, divesting, or sanctioning the production of American fossil fuels, then you’re no longer welcome to do business with the state of Texas.” –Jason Isaac

Jason's work has protected Texas state funds from being used against the people of Texas who depend on the reliability of fossil fuel energy.

In the last few years, Jason has helped other states to adopt similar policies. Now, nearly ten states have passed legislation that protects their energy industries.

As more states adopt these policies, it is important for citizens to get involved on a personal level. As much as states can divest from these woke corporations that want to destroy our energy future, you can do the same. If Americans remove their money from funds that are working against them, they can weaken or even cripple the globalist elites while funding patriotic leaders in their respective industries. Together, we can weaponize our money and our consumer practices to save America.

Attention: Just as Texas has refused to do business with organizations that are attacking fossil fuels and American energy, you can divest from them and boycott their products.
