

High Traffic – American Slavery Today

Human trafficking has again become a major topic in American culture after the success of the Sound of Freedom film this summer. With more awareness coming to the issue than ever before, hope is high that this great evil can be dismantled and the victims can be set free.

To succeed, people must be informed of the scale of these operations and the root causes of such evil. If the roots are not dealt with, then the problem could return or manifest itself in other ways. In this battle against evil, it is essential for the children of God to rise up and fight against injustice.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » Jaco's Story
- » Human Trafficking – Big Business
- » America's Identity
- » Selective Legislative Affairs
- » Identity in Christ

YOUR MISSION: Learn about the true evils of Human Trafficking, how it became a reality in America today, and what must be done to end it.

⚠ ATTENTION: America is the epicenter of human trafficking which means it is also the primary battleground for ending human trafficking. If we can end it here, we can end it globally.

Ep. 7-259 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Jaco Booyens. Jaco is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Jaco Booyens is a native of South Africa and an American citizen. He's been fighting sex trafficking as a personal mission after witnessing the horrors of trafficking through his younger sister, who is now a survivor. Jaco turned abolitionist in 2001. He's a well-recognized speaker on human trafficking, Christian faith, and motivation.

He actively fights trafficking in the United States and globally, giving aid and linking with agencies such as the TSA, FBI, Police Department, sheriffs, CIA, ICE, Homeland Security, SRT, foreign agencies, and over 172 non-governmental organizations in 56 countries around the world.

1. Jaco's Story

Jaco is known today as a leading abolitionist as his ministry team has been involved in anti-human-trafficking work for decades. For Jaco, this is not just a call from God, it is a personal battle.

Jaco was raised without a father by his single mother who was an amazing woman of God. When Jaco was 18 his younger sister Ilonka was trafficked and they did not know. It took six years until she was rescued.

After her rescue, Jaco and his family learned about the evils of trafficking from her account of what she had witnessed and experienced. This is how Jaco and his family were brutally introduced to the wicked reality of human trafficking.

Jaco faced personal guilt for years as he felt he should have protected his sister and prevented this from happening. Jaco decided to learn more about how traffickers operated, specifically through the use of force, fraud, or coercion. With his newfound knowledge and righteous indignation, Jaco swore to fight for the rescue of others who had been taken, bought, sold, and abused.

2. Human Trafficking – Big Business

Having devoted himself to the rescuing of captives, Jaco began to research trafficking and network with other abolitionists and government agencies that were working to fight human trafficking on a global scale.

Alarmingly Jaco learned that human trafficking is worse today than ever before in human history, and the greatest culprit is the United States of America.

“We’re talking about 52 billion (with a B) dollar industry worldwide, $52 billion. We’re talking women and children sold for sex in America in the 50 states of America. American children, American women, predominantly, some men and boys too. But remember, that’s an EBITDA number. That’s a no-tax number. That’s a net-net gain EBITDA number. So you tell me what is a gross margin and a gross profit on a company that has a $52 Billion EBITDA? That’s a company that dwarfs Nike, Coca-Cola, Under Armor, the NFL... You’re talking about selling children for sex in this country as a bigger business than all of the sports brands combined.” –Jaco Booyens

$52 Billion is a staggering number that reveals the gravity of the situation.

It is clear to Americans after the Sound of Freedom film debuted in cinemas nationwide that human trafficking is a real issue, but many fail to realize how much of it happens at home.

Every year, millions of people, primarily women and children are bought and sold like commodities and it is happening here in America. The United States makes up about one-third of the global human trafficking market.

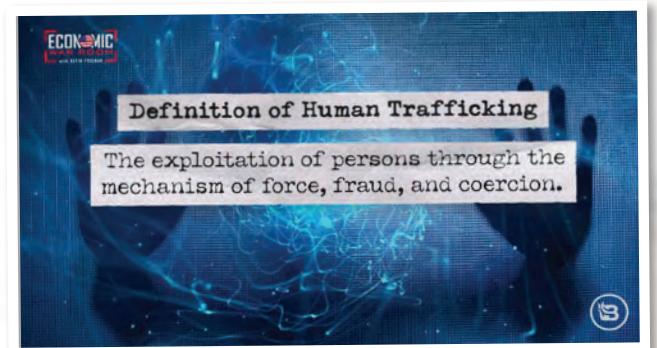

⚠ Attention: Human trafficking is a massive global enterprise that racks in billions of dollars each year.

3. America's Identity

How could America, a nation that fought a Civil War to end slavery, be the largest contributor to the human trafficking epidemic?

America was founded on Judeo-Christian principles and while we have not always adhered to them perfectly, they have always been a guiding light for the ideal society.

However, after World War II, America slipped away from its roots as post-modern atheism became a major belief system and Judeo-Christian teaching was removed from schools.

Some attempt to blame America's involvement in human trafficking solely on money but it is not that simple.

“The love of money is the root of evil. Otherwise, money is just an amazing tool in God's hand. It's a moral issue... it's an identity issue. And if you look at America today, really what's our number one problem? We have a massive identity crisis, the nation. The nation has an identity crisis of “why did God allow America to be in the first place? What's the purpose of America, the United States, in the Kingdom of God? What role does it play in the second coming of Jesus? What role does it play in being a light to the world?” Hope, redemption, restoration of lives. We've lost our identity”

—Jaco Booyens

For people to love money so much they are willing to buy and sell human beings, they must first forsake any moral code and choose to live as if their own wealth and power were all that mattered.

These are individuals who have no identity in Christ, and sadly, our nation has chosen to be a nation without identity that will breed generations of people with no identity.

“If we stop buying children today and we all of a sudden start buying lawnmowers, the cartel will bring lawnmowers. They brought cocaine because we bought cocaine. We have to stop buying. Now, why do we buy now? You get to the root issues. It’s an emptiness inside. It’s a lack of morality. It’s a moral compass that is lost. It’s a personal identity... in Christ that is not there. And then the enemy will come in and steal, kill, destroy and sex is effective.” –Jaco Booyens

Without an identity in Christ, the nation does not have the foundations necessary for morality and is therefore an empty house waiting to be filled by whatever spirit finds it. The enemy and his hordes of demons then shack up inside and begin to destroy the culture, sell people like commodities, and kill those who stand up for what is right.

America used to be a city on a hill. The Statue of Liberty represented hope to people around the world who were coming to America in search of a better life.

This was not just about money and opportunity, it was also about safety, religious freedom, and individual liberty. America represented something powerful. It represented the values of the founding fathers who intended to design a nation in which the people could be free, and no tyrant could take it from them.

“Other than my salvation, my marriage, and my kids, the greatest honor... is standing in front of a judge hearing “welcome new citizen of the United States of America.” What a moment. And to get there, I had to understand the branches of government. I had to pass exams written and verbal. I had to know the history of this country. I had to swear an allegiance to bear arms to defend it against enemies, foreign and domestic. Right now, I’m watching people flooding into the country and they’re not even asked to consider becoming American... This is the United States of America. Here we have a set of values. It’s one nation under God. Our Constitution is written from the word of God. With blood, freedom was won, and it has to be preserved. I hope it’s righteous anger... But it really pains me... I can’t even look when someone has the US flag touch the ground, never mind set it on fire. When law enforcement is spat on, when the country is treated like it’s a stepchild- it’s something to be preserved because it is the last flickering light of hope on Earth.” –Jaco Booyens

Jaco describes what many Americans feel, especially those who fought to get citizenship after immigrating here. The America we love is in decline as a godless spirit of the age pulls the nation further away from its Judeo-Christian roots that made it the beacon of hope for people around the world.

America's lack of identity in the modern age is by no means an accident.

Our founding fathers designed the Constitution to protect the individual rights of each citizen from the abuse of an oppressive majority. This was the purpose of the forming of a republic instead of a democracy. Today the globalist elites are fond of democracy and are encouraging social democracy around the world.

Their goal is to control the lives of the people and their first target was American identity because a nation that values individual liberty would never bow to their totalitarian tyranny.

The globalists want collectivism, not individualism. They want groupthink not individual thoughts. They want to tell you how to feel, think, act, behave, etc.

This is antithetical to the American values that made this nation great.

“That’s what mob rule is, where people stop thinking. And they take offense very easily. And that’s something that you’re teaching us in the Bible study is to guard against personal offense. They take offense very easily and then they take action based on that. That violates any level of morality or dignity. That’s when mobs burn down villages and mobs harm individuals. That’s the frightening thing that we see in America, is that there are people weaponizing a mob and mob rule to destroy individual liberty, which is literally an attack on God.” –Kevin Freeman

America's identity is under attack because if the nation has no moral compass and no identity in Christ, neither will its inhabitants. Without a moral compass, it will be easier to control the people. This is the ultimate goal of the enemy.

Attention: Global Elites seek to destroy the American identity and strip the nation and her people of their moral compass.

4. Selective Legislative Affairs

A great example of the war against American values is the war against justice.

America, like any nation, has never been perfect... but has always sought to remain just. When wrongs were committed, the nation eventually worked forward toward a brighter and more just future.

Today, it is clear that the justice, in which all people are equal under the law, has been mocked by America's elites.

The Biden family and many other elites in American politics have avoided legal repercussions for their alleged crimes. All of this while the organizations that hunt down criminals have been weaponized for political gain.

"It is selective legislative affairs... it's 'selectivism.' And now you've got a president's son with 144 sex crimes on that laptop with minors from other nations. Where are those nations- you know, 13-year-olds. It's riddled- if any regular American had one of those offenses, you're talking about 30, 35, 40 years in jail in front of a jury of peers. This doesn't even see the inside of the court because it is Joe Biden's son, because now we know that a president was operating under, allegedly, a pseudonym in communicating with 'the big guy.' Et cetera. And there's favor upon this guy... We gloss over things today as if it's just another thing. No, it's not. Hold on. The most secure, basically, skiff room in the world. The White House more than the Kremlin.

Right. Has just random cocaine in it... it's unacceptable. We're crossing societal moral lines every day. I talked to God one day and I said, Lord, help me understand this. And God said, 'Jaco, Satan cannot steal from me. I'm God.' And I go, okay, but there's a lot of stuff in Satan's camp. And he goes, 'Yes, because my sons forfeited it.'"

—Jaco Booyens

The spiritual war for America has in many ways been forfeited by the Church. When politicians are unjust, who is supposed to hold them accountable? It is very unlikely they will do it to each other, especially when the corruption crosses party lines.

It is the responsibility of the people to hold the government accountable and for most of American history, the main meeting place and organizer of people was the Church. It was their moral compass that informed them that the politicians were out of line. And their spiritual conviction inspired them to fight for liberty and justice.

Today's so-called "social justice warriors" are rallied not by churches or any group with a core moral philosophy, but by organizations that have been found to be scams (BLM).

The moral compass they use has no true north but instead spins to a new position every few months as the social justice cult members find a new way to mask their guilty conscience with "altruistic" activities and "progressive" talking points.

Since their version of justice is ever-changing, there is no absolute truth. With no absolute truth, there can be no justice as what is not wrong now could become wrong, and what is wrong now could no longer be considered immoral in the future.

This is why the Church must rise up and take its rightful place as leaders in the field of justice. Judeo-Christian values have a clear moral compass with a true north that defines morality and inspires a healthy society.

The use of the Justice Department to attack political opponents and those who stand for righteousness is a clear sign that Satan has gained control of these systems because the Church did not maintain dominion and stewardship of justice.

Attention: It is not too late. True believers in God can still rise up and take their rightful place as stewards of Justice on the earth.

5. Identity in Christ

For the Church to succeed in reclaiming the justice system in America, it must first find its moral center. The driver for justice for true believers is their identity in Christ.

“It’s not enough to say, ‘I’m a Catholic.’ Relationship with Jesus Christ produces healing internally of real deep wounds, heart hurts that could be subliminal that ultimately come out. When it comes out in a child, it does what? Screams for attention, when a child throws a tantrum. So, what is Hunter doing as a grown man? He’s still throwing tantrums like a child, and he’s just doing it by being high. By getting naked on camera. By snorting cocaine.” –Jaco Booyens

Without a direct and personal relationship with Jesus Christ, there are deep heart wounds that cannot be healed. Some people may be able to mask their pain, but they cannot truly heal from it.

It is the healing presence of Christ in the lives of God’s sons and daughters that gives them His perspective on justice. Without it, the door is left open for depravity.

Those who openly reject Christ or seek out other gods invite the enemy to form their sense of justice and morality (or the lack thereof).

“25 to 47%! A quarter to a half of all trafficking cases in all 50 states are on the hands of a caregiver. It’s a family member trafficking their own child. More than half of our cases of the last 13 I just talked to you about. And it’s probably more than 13 where family members trafficking their own children. It’s a father. What does that say about a society and a culture That’s the land of the free, the home of the brave, a nation that says it’s 65% Christian, which I question highly, maybe by name, sell their own children, Mothers taking their own children to drag shows.” –Jaco Booyens

This is the root cause of the wickedness in America, the people have turned to other gods and have allowed the decline of the Judeo-Christian values that once guided America into greatness.

In the Judeo-Christian worldview, every life is precious and was intentionally created and intricately designed by God with a plan and purpose for them. When parents or family members are willing to bring harm to their own children, or even sell them to other people, Christ and the teachings in the Bible had been ignored.

“Hurt people, hurt people. It’s the disease that continues to perpetuate... It’s a contagious disease of lacking identity.” –Kevin Freeman

The reality is, the people who are willing to do such heinous things have often had awful things happen to them. They have not met Jesus and so they have not healed from their own hurts. This allows that hurt to fester into contagious boils of immorality that cause them to hurt others.

The only cure for a morally corrupt people is relationship with Jesus Christ and the healing power of His presence. When a person’s identity is shaped by what Jesus says to them about who He says they are, they will be healed of past hurts and overwhelmed with love for God and for their fellow man.

It is when we experience God’s love for us as His children that we are then able to share that love with other people and heal a broken world.

 Attention: Identity in Christ is essential for establishing justice and healthy society.
