

Why AM Radio Remains Essential

In an age of digital subscriptions and algorithmic censorship, the quiet removal of AM radio from vehicles may seem like a minor issue—until you understand what's at stake. AM radio remains a vital tool for national security, emergency communication, and cultural dialogue, particularly in rural and faith-based communities.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » The Fight to Preserve AM Radio - Free Access to Emergency Communication
- » Control of Information and the Threat to Free Speech in the Digital Dashboard
- » The Role of NRB in Defending Religious Liberty and Cultural Values

YOUR MISSION: Understand the intersection of technology, media access, and faith, and why preserving independent, value-driven communication platforms is critical for the future of liberty, security, and culture.

WHY YOU SHOULD CARE

- » AM radio reaches over 40 million Americans daily and remains one of the most reliable sources of communication during emergencies. Its removal from vehicles compromises public safety and access to uncensored local and faith-based content.
- » As automakers shift toward subscription-based dashboards, they risk silencing dissent and restricting the free flow of information, particularly conservative, Christian, and rural voices.
- » The National Religious Broadcasters (NRB) plays a pivotal role in defending religious freedom, opposing regulatory overreach, and equipping Christian communicators with modern tools to engage in cultural discourse.

Ep. 9-342 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Troy Miller. Troy is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Miller is a senior executive with more than 30 years of management and business experience. He serves as the CEO of NRB, assuming leadership during a time of financial crisis. Under Miller's leadership, the association has recaptured a strong financial position, grown its membership and significantly enhanced programming, networking, equipping, sponsorship, and exhibition aspects of the annual NRB International Christian Media Convention.

Miller is also currently President & CEO of NRBTv where he has served since June 2005. He served with distinction in the US Navy from 1983-1988, including time assigned to the Naval Engineering Command at Ingalls Shipyard in Pascagoula, MS. Miller was part of the commissioning crew of USS Bunker Hill. He worked for personal computer Gateway, Inc. for ten years and was involved in leading several business startups, including Gateway's expansion into Europe and Asia, new manufacturing facilities, and global information technology application strategy. He served as the executive vice president and chief operating officer for D. James Kennedy Ministries. Miller has spoken at seminars on strategic business planning, information technology integration, organizational development, and Christian apologetics, as well as training pastors in the Far East.

1. The Fight to Preserve AM Radio - Free Access to Emergency Communication

AM radio is more than just a legacy technology—it's a resilient and inclusive communication lifeline for rural America, disaster zones, and those without access to costly data plans or strong cellular networks.

AM radio remains a cornerstone of communication, particularly in rural America, where over 40 million people rely on it daily.

Its ability to penetrate storms, reach remote areas, and function without cell towers or internet makes it indispensable for emergency broadcasts.

“Carmakers want to remove AM radio from your car, and in doing so, remove a powerful voice that reaches all of America. Without the ability to hear live radio in your car, AM stations would wither, and rural America would lose access to news, entertainment, information, and emergency broadcasts.” —Kevin Freeman

AM Radio has been used for emergency broadcasts around the world for decades.

Most recently, Israel ramped up its use of AM radio to inform citizens of terrorist and military threats after the events of October 7, 2023.

Attention: AM radio is essential for public safety and gives millions of Americans access to critical voices when they need them most.

2. Control of Information and the Threat to Free Speech in the Digital Dashboard

Automakers are transitioning dashboard functions to centralized, subscription-based systems, removing AM radio from American vehicles.

This change monetizes information access and filters which voices get heard, particularly targeting conservative talk, Christian teaching, and Spanish-language outreach, the top formats on AM radio.

“It’s not about a $9 part—it’s about controlling that dashboard... the gatekeepers out there would love to see AM radio shut down... the top programming is conservative talk. That’s number one. Christian talk and teaching is number two.” –Troy Miller

Without AM radio, drivers become reliant on services that can be restricted, censored, or shut off in crisis. The shift represents a broader pattern of centralized control across media, technology, and infrastructure.

The necessary fix costs less than $30 per vehicle, making it clear that the real issue is not technology, but control.

Attention: Subscription dashboards threaten media freedom, eroding access to independent news and faith-based content.

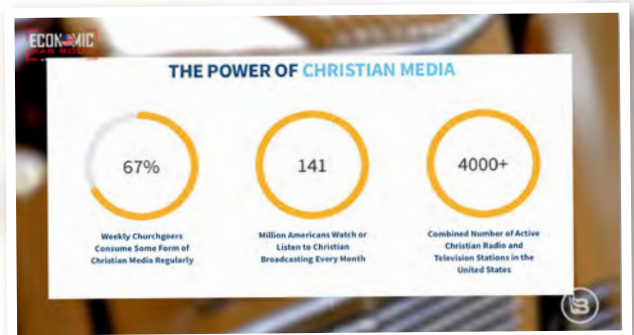

3. The Role of NRB in Defending Religious Liberty and Cultural Values

The National Religious Broadcasters Association (NRB) has fought since 1944 to ensure that Christian communicators can share the gospel without government interference.

From legal battles over the Johnson Amendment, which restricts pastors' political speech, to fighting FCC regulations that impose higher royalty rates on Christian broadcasters, NRB is a critical defender of religious liberty in modern media.

NRB's annual conventions foster innovation, networking, and discussions on emerging technologies like AI, empowering Christian media to reach 141 million Americans monthly.

By defending free speech and religious expression, while empowering Christian media groups, NRB ensures that faith-based perspectives remain vibrant in the public square.

“Every one of the last five Democratic nominees has spoken in liberal, progressive churches and not even received so much as a letter from the IRS. Yet we have multiple churches who simply told their people about the major issues or prayed for candidates and immediately received letters from the IRS saying cease or desist, or we’re going to pull your tax-exempt status...We’re taking the IRS to court... We think [The Johnson Amendment] is a violation of freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and it’s been unequally applied.” –Troy Miller

NRB also leads in equipping pastors, podcasters, and broadcasters to adapt to emerging platforms like social media, podcasting, and artificial intelligence, ensuring the church doesn’t get left behind again.

This is done, in part, through the annual NRB Convention, the premier conference for Christian communicators. Whether you work in radio, TV, film, church media, or digital marketing, the NRB International Christian Media Convention is a can’t-miss event.

Attention: NRB ensures faith has a voice in the public square, defending both spiritual and constitutional freedoms.
