

Learning from the Greats

The world of investing offers immense opportunities for wealth creation, but success requires more than luck; it demands discipline, strategy, and a long-term perspective. Drawing from the wisdom of legendary investors like John Templeton and Warren Buffett, as well as the insights of modern investor Danial Jiwani, this Economic Battle Plan™ explores the enduring principles of value investing, emotional discipline, and strategic stock selection. These concepts, rooted in decades of proven performance, provide a roadmap for building sustainable wealth in today's volatile financial markets.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » Value Investing with a Business Owner's Mindset
- » Emotional Discipline and Rational Investing
- » Strategic Stock Selection: Focus, Industry, and Outperformance

YOUR MISSION: Learn how to think, choose, and act like a long-term business owner in the stock market, applying discipline, clarity, and selectivity to achieve lasting financial success.

WHY YOU SHOULD CARE

- » Adopting a value-driven, business-owner mindset transforms investing from a speculative game into a disciplined path toward wealth.
- » Managing emotions like fear and greed is essential for maintaining rational investment behavior. Emotional control helps protect your portfolio from impulsive decisions and ensures alignment with long-term goals.
- » The majority of market returns are generated by a small group of outperforming stocks. Knowing how to select the right companies—and industries—can significantly increase your chances of success and market outperformance.

Ep. 9-351 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Danial Jiwani. Danial is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Danial Jiwani is a best-selling investment author and educator. He authored Buffett's 2-Step Stock Market Strategy, a #1 Amazon bestseller with over 50,000 copies sold, along with other titles like Take Stock In This and Outlier Investors, translated into approximately seven languages.

An ex-Wall Street investment banker, Danial achieved several hundred percent returns in companies such as Apple (500%), Meta (300%), and Amazon (150%). He has taught over 50,000 investors—including notable names like Bill Ackman and Howard Marks—through his books and online content.

Danial launched his first investing book from his dorm room at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, quickly becoming the top-selling newly published investing author nationwide.

1. Value Investing with a Business Owner's Mindset

At the heart of successful investing is the principle of buying great businesses, not just stocks, at fair prices.

Value Investing is a strategy where investors buy stocks that appear to be undervalued based on their true financial performance, not just current market price.

This strategy emphasizes purchasing shares in companies as if you were buying the entire business.

“One of the things I learned investing is that you find a great company and you let your winners run. You let them grow as businesses because you’re a business owner.” –Kevin Freeman

Rather than chasing price momentum or market hype, this approach focuses on long-term fundamentals: reliable cash flow, durable competitive advantages, and reasonable valuations.

Legendary investors such as Warren Buffett and John Templeton prioritized long-term ownership, assessing companies for their intrinsic value and future cash flow rather than short-term price swings.

“It’s far better to buy a wonderful company at a fair price than a fair company at a wonderful price.” –Warren Buffett

Danial Jiwani continues this legacy by encouraging investors to treat stocks as ownership stakes in businesses they would hold for decades.

By treating stock ownership like business ownership, investors shift to a long-term perspective, similar to real estate investors who buy for rental income, not quick flips.

Attention: Adopting a business owner’s mindset allows investors to focus on long-term value creation, reducing risk, and maximizing returns through disciplined, patient investing.

2. Emotional Discipline and Rational Investing

Successful investors do not let fear or greed dictate their choices.

Market volatility, economic headlines, and political uncertainty often drive reactionary behavior, which causes people to buy high and sell low.

It is essential to focus on fundamentals and ignore short-term noise.

“The company that makes the best products for the customer over the long term is going to perform the best.” –Danial Jiwani

Emotional resilience is critical for maintaining consistent growth in your portfolio.

Instead of being swayed by tariffs, inflation, or market downturns, investors must keep their eyes on customer value and long-term business performance.

Tuning out the noise, focusing instead on the company's customer impact and long-term cash flow, keeps investors grounded.

Ensuring that you make rational, objective decisions can help preserve capital and enhance returns over time.

This emotional control will allow you to stay committed to a methodical strategy rather than becoming a victim of volatility.

Attention: Mastering emotional discipline enables investors to make rational decisions, avoiding costly mistakes driven by market panic or hype.

3. Strategic Stock Selection: Focus, Industry, and Outperformance

All stocks are not created equal. A small percentage of companies account for the majority of market gains.

Strategic investors focus their capital on high-quality businesses in industries with strong growth potential.

"If you're in the right industry, you can outperform the market, but if you're in the wrong industry, it's going to be very difficult to outperform... The way to go in the market is to own a concentrated portfolio of stocks that will succeed no matter what."

—Danial Jiwani

One example of this is the credit card industry outperforming airlines.

While some airlines outperformed others in their industry, investors likely would have found better returns by investing in the credit card industry.

Investors should aim to hold a concentrated portfolio of companies with proven performance, rather than over-diversifying across mediocre assets.

The path to outperformance lies in identifying and holding the best businesses in the most resilient sectors.

Attention: Strategic stock selection, focusing on high-quality companies in strong industries, is key to outperforming the market and building significant wealth.

You have to make a difference. It is up to you to help take our country back and create a voice for economic liberty. [The little ships are based on Churchill’s Operation Dynamo that rescued the British Expeditionary Forces in the Miracle of Dunkirk.]
