

China's Silent War on America is Exposed

The United States faces a multifaceted threat from the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), which uses land acquisitions, biological attacks, covert influence campaigns, and political instability to wage an unrestricted warfare campaign against the West. Unrestricted warfare includes non-military tactics such as economic manipulation, cyber operations, and biological sabotage to weaken adversaries from within. This Economic Battle Plan™ outlines China's key strategies, their implications for U.S. national security, and practical steps Americans can take to defend against them.

In this briefing we will discuss the following:

- » China's Attack on U.S. Sovereignty: The Battle for U.S. Soil
- » Unrestricted Warfare: China's Covert Global and Domestic Campaigns
- » China's Political Instability and the Escalating Risk of Conflict

YOUR MISSION: Understand the scope of China's strategic actions against the U.S. and take informed steps to protect national security, food supply, and economic independence.

WHY YOU SHOULD CARE

- » China's acquisition of U.S. farmland and attempts to sabotage agriculture threaten food security and national sovereignty, with potential price shocks and supply disruptions.
- » Covert operations like election interference and pandemic spread undermine democratic systems and personal safety.
- » Knowing the CCP's internal instability helps anticipate potential aggression and improves national preparedness.

Ep. 9-354 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes a conversation between Kevin Freeman and Gordon Chang. Gordon is a friend of the Economic War Room® and an American Patriot.

Gordon G. Chang is an American lawyer, journalist, and political commentator renowned for his expertise on China. He is the author of influential books such as The Coming Collapse of China (2001), The Great U.S.-China Tech War (2020), Plan Red: China's Project to Destroy America, and China Is Going to War.

Chang earned his BA and JD from Cornell University and spent nearly two decades living and working in mainland China and Hong Kong. He served as counsel for Paul, Weiss in Shanghai and as a partner at Baker & McKenzie in Hong Kong.

A frequent commentator, Chang has appeared on CNN, Fox News, MSNBC, Bloomberg, CNBC, Newsmax TV, and PBS. His writings are featured in The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, Newsweek, The Daily Beast, Forbes, and more.

He has briefed U.S. intelligence and defense agencies—including the CIA, National Intelligence Council, Pentagon, House Foreign Affairs Committee, and the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission—and serves on the advisory board of the Global Taiwan Institute.

1. China's Attack on U.S. Sovereignty: The Battle for U.S. Soil

The Chinese Communist Party (CCP) is systematically targeting American agriculture, land ownership, and internal infrastructure.

Chinese nationals have been caught smuggling genetically modified pathogens like wheat head blight into the U.S., a clear attempt at biological sabotage.

Additionally, a wave of unsolicited seed packages and unidentified liquids sent from China to U.S. citizens has raised alarms among biosecurity officials.

In Oklahoma and Maine, Chinese-linked operations include illegal marijuana cultivation and human trafficking.

They have also been purchasing farmland near sensitive military sites through Chinese companies, all of which are required to serve the CCP.

This aggression exploits an imbalance: Americans can't own Chinese land, yet CCP-linked entities control U.S. property.

“No American may own a square inch of China.
So why are we allowing the Chinese to own square miles of our land?” –Kevin Freeman

This asymmetry exposes U.S. vulnerabilities in agriculture, infrastructure, and national defense.

States like Texas and Florida are pushing back with bans on foreign ownership near military zones, but a federal strategy is urgently needed.

Attention: China's strategic land acquisitions and agricultural sabotage demand immediate restrictions on foreign ownership and stronger national biosecurity.

2. Unrestricted Warfare: China's Covert Global and Domestic Campaigns

“Unrestricted warfare” is a Chinese military doctrine that advocates achieving national objectives through all means short of open combat, including economic manipulation, cyber warfare, propaganda, and political subversion.

The CCP has executed this strategy globally, including election interference in South Korea and possible political manipulation in the U.S.

The CCP employs these unrestricted warfare strategies to spread its influence without direct combat, which is based on the ancient teachings of Sun Tzu, The Art of War.

One major example of this was COVID-19. China concealed the transmissibility of the virus while promoting unrestricted global travel, leading to 7 million global deaths, including 1.2 million Americans.

“China deliberately spread [COVID-19] beyond China's borders. 7 million people died from this disease outside China, including 1.2 million Americans.” –Gordon Chang

Another strategy was for China to gain dominance in rare earth mineral markets by discouraging U.S. production through environmental pressure and misinformation, while bribing African officials to gain mineral rights in developing nations.

In South Korea, China allegedly rigged elections to empower pro-CCP leadership—a direct challenge to democratic institutions.

Domestically, the CCP maintains operatives within U.S. borders, including embedded agents and vast influence networks.

According to FBI assessments, these networks have overwhelmed federal law enforcement's capacity to respond.

On the economic front, China has been embedding its companies in American mutual funds, thus drawing from American investment and retirement funds to fund its own military ambitions.

⚠ Attention: From pandemics to minerals to elections, China's unrestricted warfare erodes global trust and American strength.

3. China's Political Instability and the Escalating Risk of Conflict

Thankfully, the Chinese Communist Party faces its own myriad of challenges and is fracturing.

President Xi Jinping's authority over the People's Liberation Army appears weakened, as delayed party meetings, visible fractures within the military, and Xi's absence from major summits all signal a regime under stress.

Xi's absence from summits and international forums suggests internal dissent. In this volatile environment, a desperate regime may lash out to maintain power.

While the collapse of the CCP would come as an answer to prayer, political instability increases the likelihood of a “desperation war”, a scenario in which Xi launches military action abroad to unify the party and secure his hold on power.

“Xi Jinping now has an incentive to go to war or to create a confrontation with others... to prevent other Communist Party figures from deposing him.” –Gordon Chang

This risk is compounded by the presence of Chinese operatives already embedded within the United States.

If Xi feels his regime is collapsing, he may activate these networks to launch cyberattacks, disrupt supply chains, or even incite violence on U.S. soil.

Such a scenario would move the geopolitical confrontation between China and the U.S. from theory into a terrifying reality, likely sparking World War III as the two largest superpowers battle for survival.

A politically cornered China is a dangerous China.

⚠ Attention: China's internal crisis could trigger unpredictable and aggressive acts. America must prepare now!
